Mr. Brown had practiced law in Rochester for 55 years, all the while taking prominent roles in many community service activities.

A lifelong Rochester resident, he was the son, brother, father and uncle of attorneys-at-law. After graduation from Rochester High School he earned his law degree at Indiana University in 1938 and returned here to join his father, Selden BROWN, in practice. A brother, Lawrence [BROWN], later joined the family firm, which after Selden's death, became Brown, Brown and Rakestraw.

In 1981 Jesse joined his son, Rick [BROWN], to form a separate practice known as Brown and Brown where he remained active until shortly before his death.

Mr. Brown's civic activities embraced a wide range of service. He was elected as prosecuting attorney early in his career, also serving as attorney for the county, for the Woodlawn Hospital board of trustees at its original location, for the hospital building association in construction of its new building, and as Rochester Township attorney during its consolidation of schools with the city.

He was a charter member of First Federal Savings Bank's board of directors in 1966, retiring after 22 years in 1988. He also served the Fulton County Library Board as a trustee from 1969-80, and retired in 1989 after 25 years as a director of the Rochester Telephone Company.

Born March 13, 1917 in Rochester, he was the son of Selden J. and Grace MIDDLETON BROWN. His marriage was March 20, 1938, in Indianapolis to Helen I. DAGUE, who survives.

Mr. Brown was a member of the First Presbyterian Church, the National Association of Watch and Clock Collectors and the National Muzzle Loading Rifle Association. He belonged to the American, Indiana and Fulton County Bar Associations and had been a member of the Elks Lodge, American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars. In World War II, he served as a bomber tail gunner with the Naval Air Force in the Southwest Pacific theater.

John A. Miller

May 11, 1907 - Sept. 2, 1993

A Rochester man is dead and his wife hospitalized in stable condition today after an accident at Ninth Street and Rochester Boulevard Thursday afternoon.

John A. MILLER, 86, 910 Jackson Blvd., was pronounced dead at 5 p.m. Thursday at Woodlawn Hospital. He died of internal injuries. His wife Margie [MILLER], 78, was admitted at Woodlawn Hospital with injuries including broken ribs and pelvis and a lacerated heart.

Police say the accident occurred at 4:41 p.m. when Mr. Miller pulled into the path of a semi-trailer driven by Thomas M. BOWEN, 40, Walkerton. Bowen was turning on to Ninth Street from Rochester Boulevard. His truck struck the driver's side door of the Miller car. Bowen was not injured. He was not wearing a seat belt.

Police do not know if the Millers were wearing seat belts. Officers believe seat belts would not have prevented the injuries.

The city's last fatal accident occurred in 1990 just blocks from the scene of Thursday's accident. Timothy WOODCOX was killed on Sept. 14 in front of Woodlawn Hospital on Ninth Street when the car he was driving was rear-ended by a truck.

This is the second fatal accident in Fulton County this year.

Paul D. Robb

Paul D. ROBB, 30, Monterey, was killed about 6:20 a.m. today in a car-train accident.

He was crossing train tracks on Muckshaw Road in Marshall County, just south of Indiana 10, when the train hit his car.

A passing motorist pulled him from the vehicle. An emergency crew took Robb to Holy Cross Parkview Hospital in Plymouth, where he died from massive head injuries. He was wearing a seat belt.

The crossing, marked by a wooden sign, does not have bells, lights or gates. It was the site of another fatality May 19. "I don't think there's anything flawed about the crossing," said Marshall County Sheriff Ed CRISWELL. "People just don't expect a train to be coming."

Robb was on his way to work at the Pilot-News in Plymouth, where he worked as the assistant editor. He had worked at the paper for approximately five years. He worked as a reporter for The Sentinel from June to August of 1988, and also had worked for the Rensselaer Republican. He was a native of Marion and a Ball State graduate.

Robb's wife, Michelle (ZEHNER) ROBB, is a former employee of the Fulton County Library in Rochester. Arrangements are pending.

Christy D. Burdsall

An Indianapolis woman died and four were hurt in a two-car crash at the intersection of Indiana 14 and U.S. 31 Friday evening.

Christy D. BURDSALL, 19, 157 East Valley Hill Drive, Indianapolis, died at the scene of massive head and internal injuries, Indiana State Police report. Eastbound on Indiana 14, at 6:35 p.m., she stopped her 1980 Toyota at the intersection and then continued into the path of a 1978 Ford station wagon south-bound on U.S. 31 with Wanda J. WHITLOCK, 39, 17145 Church St., Marcellus, Mich., at the wheel

Whitlock was taken to Woodlawn Hospital complaining of pain to her entire body. Also treated and released at Woodlawn - all for head injuries - were her passengers, James C. WHITLOCK, 16, Robert CLARK, 35, and Tyler ELLISON, Marcellus, Mich, 5 months.

State police credited a seat belt with preventing more serious injuries to Wanda Whitlock.

A dozen people now have died of injuries suffered at the intersection, dubbed "Junkyard Junction" for the high number of collisions there.

Although plans are not final, the Indiana Department of Transportation has scheduled a bid letting for September, 1995 for an overpass to carry Indiana 14 over U.S. 31.

State officials say that the availability of federal money and state money could delay the project.
